Business

Different business structures

This factsheet tells you about how your business income will be taxed as this will make it easier for you to meet your tax obligations.

Tax responsibilities for different business structures

Each year your taxable income is worked out by deducting expenses (and any available losses) from your gross income. The result will be a net profit or loss.

There are three common business structures:

- Sole Trader
- Partnership
- Company

Sole Trader

A sole trader is a person who:

- Goes into business and trades on their own.
 - Is personally responsible for all taxes and debts.
 - Uses their own RMD number for the business.
 - Can trade under a trade name, employ staff and register for VAT. It's important before you register for VAT or as an employer that you seek advice from us, an accountant or a tax advisor about whether or not you need to register. There may be financial implications if you need to de-register at a future date.
- If you become a sole trader, you need to let us know so we can update your records.

Partnerships

A partnership is where two or more people join together to run a business and the following criteria apply:

- Partnerships need to apply for a new partnership RMD number.
- Profits and/or losses are usually shared equally between partners unless a partnership agreement states otherwise.
- Each partner is personally responsible for any partnership debt.
- They can trade under a trade name, employ staff and register for VAT. It's important before a partnership registers for VAT or as an employer that they seek advice from us, an accountant or a tax advisor about whether or not they need to register. There may be financial implications if they need to de-register at a future date.

Company

- A company is a legal entity, separate from the shareholders that own the company.
- A company will need to apply for a company name and for its own RMD number.
- The shareholders liability for losses is limited to the amount of their shareholding in the company.
- A company has a greater number of compliance responsibilities than a sole trader or partnership. Companies not only have compliance responsibilities with Revenue Management but also the Ministry of Justice.
- A company can apply for an RMD number, register as an employer and register for VAT after it is incorporated through the Ministry of Justice.

It's important before a company registers for VAT or as an employer that they seek advice from us, an accountant or a tax advisor about whether or not they need to register. There may be financial implications if they need to de-register at a future date.

Remember these handy tips

It's important for records to be easily readable and organised enough for you or anyone to work through them quickly.

If you store your records on a computer, be sure to keep back-up copies in case your system breaks down. It's a good idea to keep the back-ups off site.
